HOW TO STUDY THIS MODULE

This is the only document in the programme that you sign.

It is not a promise to me. It is a decision taken in calm, so that you never have to take it in panic.

Every professional I respect in this field has something like it, written or unwritten. Yours will be written.

CHAPTER I

What you are producing

And why the signature matters

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

Understand the function of a written, signed code.

Distinguish a commitment from an intention.

I.1 · Why written

Because a line drawn in calm holds, and a line you must find in the moment does not. Everything that goes wrong in this profession goes wrong at speed, at the end of a long day, when someone charming asks a question at an odd angle.

In that moment you will not reason. You will reach for whatever is already there. This document is what will be there.

I.2 · Why signed

Because signing changes something. It is not magic and it is not a legal instrument; it is simply the difference between an idea you agree with and a decision you have taken. You will know which of the two you have made when you read it back in six months.

DEFINITION

Your code of conduct. A one-page document, in the first person, stating what you will always do, what you will never do, and what you will do when you do not know. Signed and dated by you.

CHAPTER II

The specification

Seven sections

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

Produce each section to the required standard.

Section	What it contains
1 · What I will never do	Between five and eight absolute commitments. No conditions, no "unless", no "generally". These are the lines that do not move at three in the morning.
2 · What I will always do	Five commitments about conduct: earliness, reporting, consistency, errors, escalation.
3 · My channels	Where household information may live, and where it may never. Devices, applications, cloud, notes, photographs. Be specific: name the applications you use today, and say what changes.
4 · My sentences	The eight scripts from Module 3, written from memory. If you cannot write them from memory, you have not done the work, and you will not have them when you need them.
5 · The lines I will not cross, whatever the price	The improper request. Name three specific things you will refuse even if refusing costs you the position. Be honest, and be specific: vague nobility here is worthless.
6 · How I protect myself	Your days off. Your one relationship outside this world. Your professional confidant, named. Your rule about the drift.
7 · The signature	Your name, and the date. Written by hand, and photographed into the document.

CHAPTER III

Standards

A commitment is falsifiable. An intention is not.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

Distinguish a real commitment from a comfortable sentence.

WORTHLESS · WHAT MOST PEOPLE WRITE

"I will always be discreet."

"I will act with integrity at all times."

"I will be professional and respect confidentiality."

Every one of these is unfalsifiable, and none of them would stop you doing a single thing you were about to do. They are decoration.

REAL · WHAT A COMMITMENT SOUNDS LIKE

"I will never photograph anything inside a residence, a car, an aircraft or a yacht. Including for myself. Including the empty room."

"I will never state a departure date, a return date, or the occupancy of a residence to anyone outside the channels the house designates. Including to friends. Including when the question is affectionate."

"I will report every error to the office on the same day, with two options and a recommendation attached, before I attempt to fix it quietly."

"I will take my two days off away from the residence. I will not answer non-urgent messages on them. If I break this twice in a month, I will tell my mentor."

"I will never say 'I passed it on' unless I passed it on."

Each real commitment names a specific behaviour, closes the obvious exception before you can reach for it, and could be broken, which is precisely what makes it worth signing.

CHAPTER IV

A complete worked example

A composite, honestly done

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

Read a finished code. Use its shape, never its content.

1 · WHAT I WILL NEVER DO

I will never photograph anything inside a residence, a vehicle, an aircraft or a yacht. Including the empty room. Including for myself.

I will never disclose a movement, a departure date, or the occupancy of a residence outside the designated channel. Including to my family.

I will never speak of a former household, in any room, to anyone, for the rest of my life.

I will never conceal, delay or soften an error of mine.

I will never take, accept or be owed anything by a supplier.

I will never say something untrue on behalf of anyone in the house, however small, however lightly it is asked.

I will never repeat a compliment about myself to the principal.

2 · WHAT I WILL ALWAYS DO

I will be early. Not on time.

I will report every error the same day, with two options and a recommendation attached.

I will be the same on Tuesday as on Sunday, whatever was said to me yesterday.

I will escalate anything that troubles me to the office, in writing, the same day, even when it feels disproportionate.

I will keep a dated, factual log of instructions and decisions. Facts only. No opinions, ever.

5 · THE LINES I WILL NOT CROSS, WHATEVER THE PRICE

I will not lie to a lawyer, an investigator, or an official, for anyone, at any price.

I will not conceal anything that endangers a child.

I will not carry a message between two principals in conflict, and I will say so the first time I am asked.

6 · HOW I PROTECT MYSELF

Two days off, away from the residence. Not answering non-urgent messages on them.

My sister. She knows nothing about my work and never will, and that is exactly why she is the one.

My professional confidant: [name], former colleague, another house. We speak monthly, about the shape of things and never the content.

My rule about the drift: if I am ever invited to sit down after the work is finished, and I want to, I will note the date. If it happens three times, I will speak to my confidant. I would rather notice it early than be moved on gently in a year.

CHAPTER V

The marking rubric

*How I will read itLEARNING OBJECTIVES

Anticipate the criteria.

Criterion	What earns the mark
Falsifiability	Every commitment could be broken. If it could not, it is decoration and it will be struck out.
The closed exception	Each line closes the obvious escape route before you can reach for it: "including for myself", "including to my family", "including when the question is affectionate".
The sentences	The eight scripts, from memory, correct. This is not a memory exercise. It is the reason you will still be employed in five years.
The uncomfortable lines	Section 5 names three specific things you will refuse even at the cost of the position. Vague nobility earns nothing.
The signature	By hand. Dated. If you are not prepared to sign it, the document is not finished, and neither is the decision.

CHAPTER VI

Submission

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

Submit correctly.

One page. PDF. Signed by hand and dated. Submitted before your session.

Keep the original. Read it on your first day in a house. Read it again at the end of your first year, which is exactly when you will believe you no longer need it.

HOW TO SUBMIT, AND HOW TO BOOK YOUR SESSION

1. Submit. Everything you produced this week goes into the Submit area of Module 4, inside your student portal. One PDF. Not by email, and not in the chat.
2. Book. The moment your work is uploaded, a Book your session button appears in that same place. Click it and choose your slot with me. Do it straight away, while you are there, because the slots for each week are limited and they are taken in the order they are booked.
3. Leave me time. Book your session for at least two days after your submission, so that I can read your work properly beforehand. That way the session is spent on the correction rather than on the reading, and you get every minute of it.
